This program is good. People are easy to get along with, being together in staying sober. I've been working out more (taking care of my body) & actually spending more time with my family!

Don't Just Walk By
submitted by Alicia Eisenbach

The university I attended had many students, about 35,000. One early afternoon I was walking around the campus & found a female student sitting on the walkway with tears on her face. Everyone just walked by her so I decided to stop.

I dropped my books & sat down on the path with her. It turned out that she had injured her ankle & was unable to walk to get help. She was a new student to America & to the university. So I told her that I would sit with her until she was ready to get up.

It only took a few minutes for her to calm down. I took her by the hand & we were able to get her to medical treatment. She thanked me so much for just stopping! We would run into each other occasionally on campus & she would smile & thank me again.

I was amazed that just my sitting there, offering support & comfort to a total stranger, helping them walk to the nearest building would affect me & her so much. We both felt a bond of human compassion & the need to just

submitted by Erica Eyer

Calling his disciples to him, Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, this poor widow has put more into the treasury than all the others. They all gave out of their wealth; but she, out of her poverty, put in everything -- all she had to live on." — Mark 12:43-44 (NIV)

I grew up very poor & with a single mom in the throws of addiction. Often there was no money for food, & I was hungry a lot. On my fifth birthday (1986), a couple close family members were invited to go to a park to celebrate - no cake, no presents, not a problem.

Except for my auntie. She had an envelope in her hand. Before everyone sang "Happy Birthday," I saw a little boy, probably my age, & a woman, digging in the park dumpster for food. Something happened to me. I begged my mom to invite them to my party but my mother was not a fan of strangers.

She said "No." I was intrigued. I didn't know others struggled like me. It hurt my heart. I was watching them when my auntie handed me the envelope. I kept watching them as I opened it. I saw the contents, a crisp 100 dollar bill! My mother was enraged that my auntie would give me such a large amount of money. I think my auntie trusted me more than my mother with cash.

We were poor. I didn't eat 3 days a week. I had a very hard childhood. But I had never dug in a dumpster for food. The struggle, the suffering...I had never seen anyone else struggle. It just wasn't right if it could be prevented. My auntie kept talking over my mother, telling me I can do ANYTHING I want with that money.

So I did. I walked to the dumpster to the boy & his mother. I explained to the boy that it was my birthday & my one present was a $100 bill, & I wanted to give it to them. There were so many tears & "Thank You's." I & my auntie understood how powerful it was to give the only money I've ever seen away. My mother never did.

I paid dearly for the action that night, by the rage of my mother who could not use that money to score. But it was worth it.

I think about that boy & his mother often.
